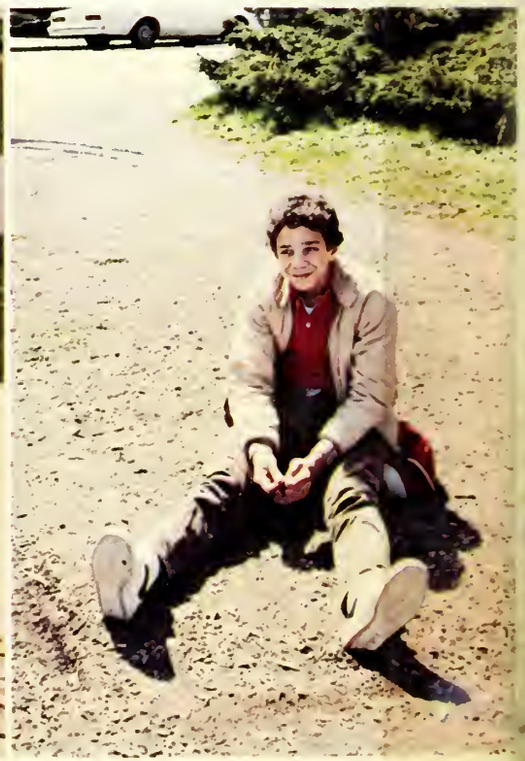
We all came to

Brookline High School

for the same reason . . .



3 RULE
1 NARROW the
to think wit
2 FIND A TH to have some
to say
3 USE SPEC to convince reader

. . . to grow, to learn,

to discover who we are . . . and where we are going.

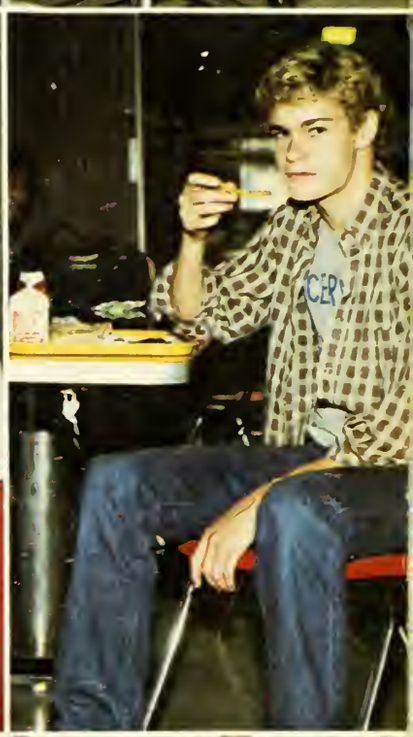
We chose the classes that looked interesting and met our needs.

When we weren't in class, we spent our time munching in the cafe or trying to study in the library.



After school, we challenged ourselves in many different sports, and we had a lot of fun together . . .

. . . on the field . . .

on the bus . . .

always supporting

each other . . . and our goal was always

to waste Newton

North.

Most of all, we found the one thing that will last forever . . . friendship.

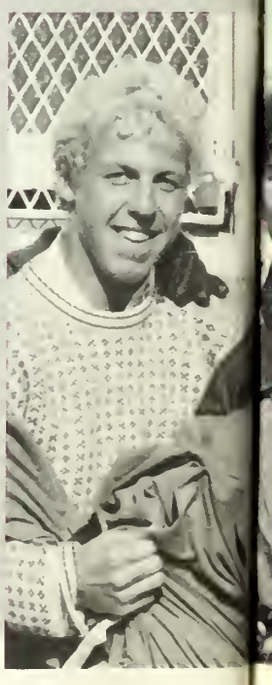
SENIORS

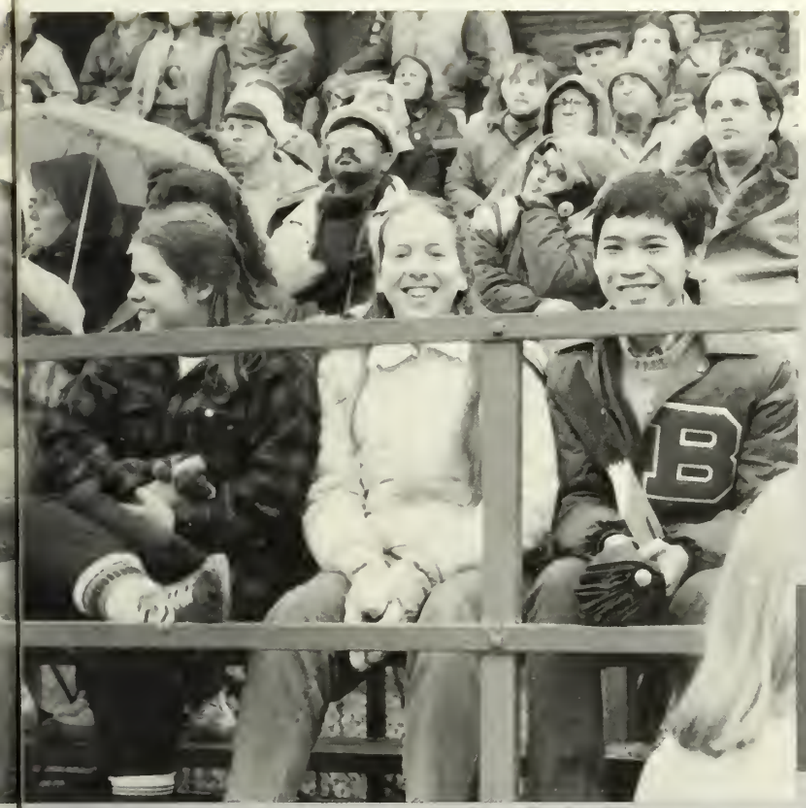
1984

SENIORS

Midway through my seventh semester,
Burdened with tasks; Smith, Dudley, and Metzger,
Huddled beneath the noxious vapor,
College Application . . . Senior paper,
I started awake to a blinding light;
'Twas Adam A. and his bottle bright.

Then what to my wondering eyes should appear,
but Pete Polishuk and eight cases of cheer!
I rose from my desk no longer distraught,
For here was the life I long idolized and sought.
Such vices I watched in their glory unfold
Sloth, indulgence; excess untold.





On the eighteenth of April at eleven-o-five,
Our decadent schemes we'd pursue and contrive.
We'd hop in Mels' car and go to the sea,
Na, just blow off A-block and watch some T.V.
Dreams of wanton disorder; the prom . . .
Straight home from school; cut grass for Mom

I call for my wine; I call for my fool,
where is that sophomore; he's breaking a rule.
Seniors are kings, we all do proclaim,
but next year, I fear it won't be the same.
For all petty tyrants, here's a kick in the crotch,
while a senior right now, you'll soon be a frosh!

"Live every day like it was your last. You only live once, so GO FOR IT!"

There are many things that we will remember:
— that day in January during freshman year when we shunned academics to gather around the television in the library to cheer and jeer as Ronald Reagan was sworn in as President — that general feeling of quiet euphoria that envelops everyone after homeroom on Friday — sitting against the wall at 7:50 a.m. on a Monday morning before math watching the halls fill with people, the school come to life
— blinding sunlight on the third floor bridges
— Mr. Dudley with his "Okay folks" at the end of every class — the mouse in Mr. Cunningham's closet
— taking off after A block to go see Return of the Jedi
— avoiding the language lab — listening to the Police in the language lab — what language lab?
— taking SAT's in a history room with Mr. Cohen and a broken clock — that incredible feeling after exams in June — all that struggle to get out of this place and all of a sudden you don't want to leave — that first day when spring is in the air and everyone discovers the quad again — and the field and the frisbees and the sun — that other great feeling when it finally snows!
— fire drills — some in the rain, some in the sun, some in the snow, some just inside the doorway
— Fridays after homeroom — the huge traffic jam in front of Akers house

. . . and more memories

— everyone out in front of the gym before practices — five radios with five different songs — soccer balls in the street — late buses
— falling asleep during any and all audio-visual presentations
— going out for Chinese food the night that mid-years ended and simply not believing we lived through it
— the day before Christmas vacation — playing "lecture chairs" in 260-
— food all over the place, everyone smiling, the band playing Christmas Carols
— signing attendance sheets with all kinds of inventive names
— sitting up in A-wing singing refrains of Oklahoma! at the top of our lungs
— Mr. Ritchie and Mr. Young singing over the PA system in homeroom, if you have a PA system in homeroom — Mrs. Addelson singing choruses from "The Pirates of Penzance"
— singing the Star Spangled Banner before the Newton North Soccer game
— pulling all-nighters over the telephone
— Mr. Wright hanging his glasses on his ear — outlining 47 pages of history in one night for Mr. Dudley, that silver-tongued master of intellectualism often seen doubling as a swinging cowboy
— broken clocks
— B Blocks that you didn't think were ever going to end
— reading, writing, memorizing, thinking, hurrying, laughing, moaning, sleeping
— sleeping some more . . . sleeping an awful lot
— surviving four very incredible years

Meet the new boss,
Same as the old boss.

Four short years.

Last year Choir and Ensemble performed at three of the elementary schools, the second being Lawrence, my esteemed alma mater. There were six members of the Ensemble who also went to Lawrence, including my brother and three of his closest friends, all seniors. It was quite a sight to see those four, who were on the verge (it was April) of completing a whole segment of their lives, perform beautifully for their former teachers who had seen them leave four years ago as children and now saw them return as young adults. Just a short while ago they were so small and young, and all of a sudden they were there, in formal dress, handsome men and beautiful women, radiating maturity, self-confidence and poise. It all brought home to me what education really means. In four years at Brookline High School each of these kids had found his or her niche, the things that they were really good at, and they had latched onto those activities and grown and matured with them and drawn out the excellence that had been dwelling inside of them all along. Think about it. We've all done the same thing, found a place for ourselves here, and it has meant a lot. The teachers — they watch the process unfold, they facilitate it. High School is the place where you begin to find out who you are. Education in itself is that entire process, one that hopefully never ends. To think that we won't be a part of BHS next year, that the everything will continue to function without us, is very scary because for the last few months we have been very important people in a very important institution. Whatever we have learned though, we will take with us when we leave, and that is what makes it all worthwhile.

Tell Us About Yourself

Here I sit, with the application to my first choice school in front of me. The page is blank and due in two weeks. Okay, what do they want me to do? They want to get to know me as a person. They want to know all about me in two hundred words or less. What do they really want?

Do they want to know how embarrassed I am when I remember how drunk I got at my first C.Y.O. dance as a freshman? Or how long it took me to learn that school dances were dull (but that everyone goes anyway)? Do they want to know how long it takes to clean up a house at the end of the weekend after someone's parents took a vacation? Or how many people you can fit in a station wagon on a sunny Saturday morning? Or how long it takes four girls to change a tire at midnight on a Friday? Do they want to know how much fun Mr. G's class was? Or how many times I fell asleep in Math? Or how far in advance I studied for exams Senior year? Did I study? Or how much I appreciated doing detention for being thirty seconds late for A-Block? Do they want to know how I spent the mornings that carnations were given out wondering if "he" sent one? Or about yelling at skinny runners who went by our soccer practices? Or what went on in the back of the lacrosse bus? Do they care how much I am going to miss Brookline but how much I want to get out of here? (Does that make sense?)

I look back at the still blank application. No, somehow I don't think any of that is what they expect. I guess they really want to know me. So, here goes.

A Blast From the Past — memories of days gone by Senior year — the elusive, never-arriving year that has finally dropped in our laps. Here we are faced with goodbye. GOODBYE? Seems as if we just said hello. What do I remember from my four years here? Do I remember anything? I remember graduating from elementary school and not being able to wait to be up at THE HIGH SCHOOL. Mixed feelings of anxiety, wonder, and fake confidence took over my body as I mounted the steps saying, "Give me a break, it's only freshmen today." The stories of the fourth floor had, as usual, reached the incoming freshmen. Being a bit uneasy, I parted with my friends (freshmen never walk to school alone), and began my search for the fourth floor and my homeroom. And yes, I did go up a wrong staircase before I found it! I took a seat. Nobody was saying a word! Even moving made me uneasy. Mr. Becker (a homeroom teacher that stayed two days before deserting us) passed out handbooks, white schedule sheets, and took attendance. For an hour we sat there, silent and uneasy, stealing glances at familiar and unfamiliar faces and watching the clock. We were faced with study halls, freshman group, library passes, closed campus, and freshman gym — being a freshman but never looking like one and hearing all of the stereotypes about freshmen that never seemed to fit me. My first year of high school, filled with uncertainty, changes, and growth, was over soon after its arrival . . .

Sophomore year I'm afraid, also went quickly, but without leaving a single memory. All that comes to my mind when I think of Sophomore year is not being a freshman anymore, having my choice of gyms, and having a third homeroom teacher. Homeroom was a bit different that year. We no longer sat in the chairs, but on the chairs, and desks, and on the floor. I brought food everyday from my B Block cooking class and the boys still threw paper airplanes out of the window like in eighth grade.

Junior year . . . Finally an upperclassman, I thought sitting in homeroom on the first day (one of the only days I went to homeroom). Yet another homeroom teacher! Faced with a schedule of Honor Chem, Honor U.S. History and Mr. Reynolds (who was about to meet his second Potter in two years), everyone groaned in unison and went off to A Block. Chem turned out to be "not so bad" (If you called it fun, classmates would think that you were trying to get in good with the teacher — or that you kept a Chem textbook in the bathroom for light reading). History was fun (How can Mr. Cradle turn a terrible subject into something you enjoy?) And Mr. Reynolds only called me Wende twice.

And then it happened! Finals over with, I took off for Spain dreaming of second semester, Senior slump, and finally learning to drive . . . fears of college essays, mid-year school reports, APPLICATIONS, APPLICATIONS, APPLICATIONS. Petrification on April 15. Incredible as it seems, we've made it guys! We've lasted through Physics, CPR, European Literature, and the SENIOR PAPER. Through fetal pigs and long nights of studying, we have survived. We've got nothing but good times to look forward to: the prom, graduation, a partying summer and, when September rolls around, being a freshman once again.

You, you are on the road
Must have a code that you can live by.
And so, become yourself
Because the past is just a good-bye.
Teach
your children well, their father's hell did slowly go by
And feed
them on your dreams,
the one they pick, the one you'll know by.
Don't you ever ask them why,
If they told you you would cry,
So just look at them and sigh,
and know they love you.
And you, of the tender years,
can't know the fears that you elders grew by.
And so, please help them with your need.
They seek the truth before they can die,
Teach
your parents well,
Their children's hell
Will slowly go by.
And feed
them on your dreams
The one they pick,
the one you'll know by.
Don't you ever ask them why,
If they told you you would cry,
So just look at them and sigh,
And know they love you.
— Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young

Two camp counselors once sang this song to a motley group of teenagers with whom they were spending an incalculably fun February vacation in the frozen wastelands of Western Massachusetts. They said it summed up their purpose, their reasons for spending that time with us. In four years I've come to see how right they were and how those words apply to the people here, in these hallowed halls. Our teachers have done more than illuminate concepts of the Italian Renaissance and drill the definition of the limit of a sequence into our skulls. They have, without really knowing it, shown us their dreams, their ideas, their values, their lives. We have spent four years being shown how people different from our parents live and think, and we can internalize that and draw from it what we might want for ourselves. We begin to see what we want to learn. As people, our teachers have given us a lot, and nothing could be more important.

I teach therefore I am.

Yuval D. Barnea

Thanks to all those who helped me through high school (and it wasn't easy doing so in English . . .), especially my parents, Sivan, friends and family back in Israel and Boston.
See you all in ISRAEL.

Tobie Fletcher

If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer.

MORE THAN A COMMITMENT

Brookline High has a diverse collection of talented athletes. Each with a unique contribution to the success of their team, and all engrossed with obtaining a common goal . . . VICTORY!!!

Athletes:

After spending a long day in class, athletes are required to draw upon previously unknown reserves of energy. More than once a fleeting feeling of regret surfaces in an athlete, who is far beyond the point of exhaustion, when the ruthless coach demands, "one more lap." The exhilaration of personal achievements makes all of the hours of sacrifice well worth the investment.

The dedication associated with Brookline athletes is illustrated by rigorous early morning swim workouts, excruciating double session practices, and the runners determination to train in rain, snow, sleet, or a nuclear holocaust. All the athletes require both mental and physical firmness developed by a continual effort to better the team.

Through each season, every athlete obtains a sense of pride that is expressed by the perseverance and devotion associated with their commitment.

SOCCER 1983

This year the girls' varsity soccer team, coached by the incomparable Gabe Megail, reknowned Irishman and John Wayne impersonator, rose valiantly in the Suburban League to capture third place. Never has such an incredible bunch of crazies, gathered under the auspices of a first year coach, produced so much. The eleven (11) seniors (count them) Kathy, Danielle, Hanya, Beth, Lisa, Kristen, Nique, Rachel, Liz, Darcey, and Nancy, seven of them, in their third year of varsity play, were supplemented by an incredibly talented group of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, including Michele Walsh, Krista Wachter, Sara Dwyer, Sally Lincoln, Maeve Costin, and Nadia Hall.

Two standouts were senior goalie Hanya Bluestone, known for her multi-faceted talent (she once scored while playing goal — it was a penalty kick though), and Sally Lincoln. None of us will be surprised if Sally ends up at the bottom of the Reservoir wearing cement shoes, for her vicious slide tackles have won her many sworn enemies throughout the Surburban League.

Everyone contributed to our victories, the most memorable being a 2-1 defeat of Lexington when Danielle Campana scored in the last ten seconds, a 6-1 rout of Quincy in which everyone had a great time, and a 2-0 first time ever defeat of Brockton. (Revenge is so sweet!)

What we will truly remember, though, is the great camaraderie that developed during the season. We truly had a great time being with each other. Many thanks to Gabe and Jack for making it all possible ...

Even at the beginning of try outs, it was apparent that 1983 would be a year where the rapid growth of soccer in America finally caught up with Brookline. Faced with the decision of either upgrading the quality of the program, or retaining the tradition of letting every one play Coach Mohacsy remained true to his commitment to winning and designated 1983 a "building" year. Many juniors and seniors, unaware of the vast improvement in the quality of soccer throughout the state, were astonished when a skillful group of under classmen displaced them from their roles on varsity. However, as the seven remaining seniors led a bunch of inexperienced team against Suburban League rivals, the draw-backs of the "building" year became apparent. The first of our discouraging defeats left us puzzled. Arne Kaplan, teacher and partial fan appropiately commented, "you have so much talent, why do you keep losing?"

Late we realized that the jump from elementary soccer was far greater than expected and we were missing the scrappiness of past Brookline teams. It was lack of unity due in part to the international diversity of the players and the overall inexperience of the team that prevented us from using our great talents.

Despite the disappointment of a 3-7-2 record, we cannot forget certain high points of the season. We proved we could dice with the best in the two toughest games of the season, Waltham (0-0) and N. Quincy (0-0).

In terms of individual performance the renowned Irish-International defense comprised of Foley, Lockwood, Doherty, McCarthy, Yoder, Nichols, Gelantis, Kramer and Vines shone brightest. None could equal Doherty's total dominating minutes against Cambridge's All-Scholastic forward. Lockwood's inspired play against N. Quincy and Foley's goal tending provided Brookline with a shut out, enough to tie Waltham.

Offensive weakness hampered our defensive power. Despite the spectacular aerial volleys of the Khang brothers and the deadly precision shooting of strikers Amar Kallouby and Ouzeah (the non-dimensional entity), the offense remained unproductive until the final game at home. A fleeting moment of effective communication allowed "the entity" to strike twice with cobra like quickness, and the resulting goals and victory show a glimpse of the talent usually stifled by disorganization.

Rather than dwelling on the growing pains of 1983, we, the departing players and coach, look ahead with confidence, knowing that we have established a level of skill in Brookline soccer equal to that of any other state. We hope to see the results, the products of our struggle, in a dynasty of superb teams able to, through unified skill and aggression, fulfill our dreams of a state championship.

CROSS COUNTRY 1983

A second league championship seemed assured as the Brookline Road Warriors donned their gear for 1983. While victory last year had been close, the team lost only three varsity runners and they seemed to have an endless supply of quality runners to replace them. Moreover, three new seniors burst upon the scene. Aaron Becker, Galone Kaplanski, and Gonz Guetierrez. Aaron whose natural ability appeared in his success in spring (and whose determination appeared in his readyness to Mowhawk himself) quickly earned himself a varsity spot. Galone, an Israeli acquisition, was a member of the Israeli national team. Gonz from Costa Rica brought his half-mile talent and determination (as well as a slight paunch) to the longer distances of Cross Country. Meanwhile, Captain Dave Counts filled with hope as well as bee pollen, brown rice, assorted vitamins, and herbal potions) sported a dashing flat top-doo, prepared for his fourth cross country season. Dave Caspar, Kenny, and James Carson helped provide leadership as seniors with a keen sense of decorum, and propriety.

But this was not enough as Brookline was decisively defeated by a superiorly trained Cambridge squad. The Mowhawks didn't help, the jackets didn't help, and the white stripes of hair paint applied to the heads of several team members only served to scandalize coach Norm Laakso. Endowed with greater talent, but inadequately trained and a victim of self confidence, the Road Warriors lost all hope of a league championship. Although Brookline would not lose another duel meet, Cambridge would remain undefeated. Against Waltham, Newton, and even Brockton not more than one opposing runner would break into the top ten finishers, but always there was the loss to Cambridge.

Road

But, fear not true believers! The spirit which gave the glow to the brilliant red jackets (batteries not included etc) won't be dimmed. Boasting an 11-1 record over the past two years, only four members of the league champion team will not return next year. The core of the 1982 squad, a devastating crew of juniors who demoralized and defeated opposing runners, surging by them in a single hoard, will lace their Nikes as experienced seniors. Ben Chertok whose hat-size is exceeded only by his ability will assume duties as captain along with Stef Counts, who carries the Counts name into its third year as team captain. Peter Sheldon, an outstanding miler, established himself as one of the best cross country runners in the league despite his being a computer dweeb. Brad "Spike" Skillman, whose nickname is well deserved for his ruthlessness, underwent a personal renaissance as a runner through a summer of rigorous road-racing (nice alliteration, eh?) The reserved and consistant Jun Whang, who can always be counted upon for a terrific effort, will return next year promising to say more than three words (Jun is the strong, silent type). Mike Urquiola certainly proved he was more than just a pretty face as he, Walter Ng, Rand "I'd rather be swimming" Day, and Dave Gordon round out the Junior crew.

Not to be forgotten (although very forgetable) are the sophomores who will figure greatly in Brookline's future. That smooth, Dave Meyer (no relation in the least to Greg Meyers — the Boston Marathon winner) and Josh Becker (who may yet be stranger than his brother) broke into the varsity ranks. Mike Kelly and Bob Crawford also flirted with varsity stature, running much better than they harmonize while Josh Sideman and Matt (one-plate) Olens showed vast improvement. Watch out Cambridge, the Force is with them!

FIELD HOCKEY 1983

Brookline girls' field hockey is back, and this year it's not just playing games. The team is dedicated and hard working, as proven by the fact that it was practicing two weeks before school started.

Last year was a hard year for the team: a new coach, a new formation, many new players, and a new league. It was a year of tranistions and adjustments which created a lot of frustrations. This year, however, the team agrees things will be different.

The varsity team consists of five seniors and eight juniors. Tri-captains Deanne Sanchez, Jennifer Dopazo, and Heidi Green are very hopeful for the new season. "The team seems to be working well together," they say "and there is a lot of team spirit."

After an upsetting 3-2 loss to Revere in the season's opener, the team pulled together in its next game the following Thursday to tie Malden, 1-1 a team it had lost to in previous years. After the first half, Brookline was leading 1-0. In the second half Malden came back with ten successive offensive penalty corners. Brookline's defense however, led by "Kamakaze" Cathy Becker did not allow them to capitalize. Malden scored only one goal, and left the score which was to be at 1-1. Another large reason for holding off Malden's offense was goalie Lara Anderson. Her aggressiveness left them in awe. "The fact that the team didn't give up shows what kind of girls they are," says Coach Carol Gregory. Anyone could have just let them score and start the ball at fifty again. It takes a lot, however, to keep putting out 110% time after time."

Playing varsity for the defensive team are Cathy Becker, Jennifer Dopazo, Laureen McGourty, Julie Slotnik, and Alyssa Bresnahan. Offensive players are Heidi Green, Deanne Sanchez, Carla Roddy, Amy Randall, Inger Lerra, Sara Gutensohn, Kirsten Hibert, and Lelia Deykin.

The junior varsity team also looks promising. It beat Revere in the season's opener. Against Malden it fared the same as varsity, except that its tie was 0-0.

One thing that has been very hard for field hockey is that until mid-season this year we were not in a league. The Greater Boston League has given their approval for us to join and next year we are expecting to rise to the honor.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

This year Brookline football, under the direction of new head coach Bill McKeown, won their opening game at Wellesley 21-9. The team then struggled against the Brockton Boxers and the Waltham Hawks, but lost. At home coming, Brookline walloped Everret and went on to win the next two games against Cambridge and Madison Park. The team then suffered two disappointing losses to North Quincy and Arlington. After 8 games the varsity was 4-4. The senior leadership and coaching staff, William McKeown, Richard Freccero, Jack Heavy and Al Spara, have helped the team to be successful this year. Brookline can look forward to a strong program next year, based on the performance of the returning starters, the sub-varsity (4-3), and the freshman squad (6-1).

The captains hope that the student body will support Brookline football in a bigger and better way in the years to come.

Girls' Swimming:

November 18, 2083

Dear Girl Swimmers of 1983,

Can you believe it's been 100 years since we've swam at Brookline High School together! It seems as though just yesterday we had our first meeting with our new coaches Barbara Gould and Roy Coates. Remember how scared we were that practice would be so hard, and we all would be forced to lose 10 pounds? As a team Barbara set a goal of 250 pounds; I still can see the look on her face when she told us we had gained 14 pounds! Some kind of diet!

Then came our new sweats and new suits. I guess no one told Ed Schluntz when he ordered the merchandise, that our team was built similar to a football team, because he ordered suits that gave us wedgies, and sweats that gave us no room to breathe, Not all our apparel was too small; remember the "Japanese" tee-shirts Karen Rao ordered too large? She knew how fat we really were! It's too bad we had to spend the rest of our lives explaining what they said in Japanese! Only Karen would think of such a unique idea.

Pretty soon our season started, and swimming became a part of our daily routines. We worked hard to get in shape, and when the first meet approached we were tasting victory. Week after week and meet after meet we'd sweep the Suburban League victory after victory. That is until we met Newton North (By now they probably have gained 50 pounds, and the only exercise they get is pushing the gas pedal down in their Cadillacs).If I remember correctly, we came kinda close to beating them. It was Brockton that seemed as though it was a bad nightmare that just kept repeating itself.

You remember Suburbans at Cambridge Ringe and Latin! Just because we placed fourth, didn't mean we weren't first. After all we were the first ones in the Suburban League to steal a shower curtain from the Cambridge locker room and make a banner out of it.

Well we showed the South Section just who would rule at sectionals, didn't we Micky, Tammy, Melissa, Leigh, Cindy, and Amy? Who said you need to warm up before competing? After all we took the scenic route to North Quincy and learned many things about how our coaches follow directions. It taught us never to take directions from a boy who can't even find his fly and zip it closed, and never to let Barbara put her car keys in her sweatshirt!

The 1983 season was filled with many laughs and many close moments. I can't believe it happened so long ago.

PEACHES AND CREAM, PEACHES AND CREAM, LOOK AT THE GIRLS ON THE OTHER TEAM, THEY ARE ROUGH, AND THEY ARE TOUGH, AND BOY CAN THEY CROCHET! KNIT ONE, PEARL TWO, NEWTON YOU HOO!!

GOLF PUTTS ALONG

by James Radler

The 1983 Brookline Golf team has a long way to go for it to achieve a winning record. It is a young team with the top six players sophomores and juniors. The team is led by a junior and two sophomores, Jim Radler, Scott Carter and Matt (Lefty) Lefkowitz. These three are all returning letterman from last year's squad. The other starters on the team are Peter Wilson, Dean Jooms, Dan and Tim Harrington.

Coach Ron DiVincenzo has been patient with the players. His goal is to mold a winner for the rest of this year and to carry over to next year's squad.

The team is looking forward to playing Cambridge and Quincy where they hope to pick up their first win. The team is optimistic and gaining experience with every match and should play well the latter part of the year.

Equal Effort, Unfair Praise

I am a very disappointed person. I am disappointed Monday through Friday, Saturday afternoons and Sunday mornings. This disappointment began when I learned to read and became interested in womens' sports, whether they be on the national or local level.

Don't get me wrong. I'm not a womens' rights fanatic or anything like that. I just believe that if a person, male or female, puts a great deal of effort into becoming the best that they can be in a certain sport, then they should receive the acknowledgement and praise that they are due. The coverage of womens' sports on the national level is a disgrace to all the people who have worked so hard in promoting it.

Pick up the Boston Globe's sports page any day, Monday through Friday, and you will see the exteme differences that exist in the reporting of mens' and womens' sports. The front page of this section is always about men, unless someone like Rosie Ruiz tries to bury womens' sports even furhter. There are always pictures from the NFL, NBA, NHL, or the American and National leagues in baseball. The readers end up knowing more about the Celtics' traveling plans for the next two weeks than they know about womens' intercollegiate play in a variety of sports in Division I, II, or III. I understand that there are no national professional womens' teams in any sport. The Womens' Basketball League was dissolved due to low attendence, lack of playing facilities, and lack of funding. The players ended up paying the referees out of their own pockets. The mens' professional teams deserve recognition, but not at the expense of the womens' teams.

On the college level, everyone knows about Boston College and their amazing quarterback Doug Flutie. Everyone knows about Pat Ewing going from Cambridge Ringe and Latin High School to being a star at Georgetown University, and about Bobby Carpenter going as a first round draft pick to the NHL from a prep school in Massachusetts.

Does anyone know about Medina Dixon? Medina Dixon was Pat Ewing's six foot two inch classmate on the Girls' Varsity Basketball Team who went to Old Dominion, one of the best womens' basketball teams in America, on a full athletic scholarship. She is currently a star on their team in Virginia.

Does anyone know about Cheryl Miller? Cheryl Miller is now a starting forward on the U.S.C. Womens' Basketball Team. She scored a record 106 points in a varsity basketball game and is one of the few women to ever dunk a basketball in a high school game. No one knows about them because they were never given the chance to find out. If there is no coverage of their activities, there is no way to learn about their achievements.

Saturday afternoons are always full of televised mens' sports. The NCAA basketball playoffs featured game after game of the top mens' basketball teams going after the national title. We knew all there was to know about the eventual finalists, we'd seen them play every other Saturday or Sunday making a televised climb to the top of their league.

There was one womens' basketball game televised last year. It was the championship for the Division I title. I didn't even realize it was going to be on. There was nothing about it in the newspaper or on the radio. I was changing the channel on my television when I noticed what I thought was a group of men who needed hair cuts playing college basketball. They were really women; Women? On television? I nearly fell out of my chair. The next day, (Sunday), there was an article in the paper about Louisiana Tech winning the national title. It was buried in the middle of the sport section, right under an article about college wrestling.

In local college sports, the mens' basketball games are always covered on the eleven o'clock news by three major networks. The women are not. The morning paper always gives the box scores of the mens' games played the night before. It even tells us the half-time scores, the game attendances and the teams' records. The womens' teams are lucky if just the score is put in. Who cares about their box scores, their attendences or their team records.

I do, for one. I also care that the head coach of the Harvard University womens' basketball team, Kathy Delany Smith, holds one of the longest winning streaks in high school history. She led the Westwood Girls' Basketball team to a record two hundred and some odd consecutive wins while she was coach there. This goes practically unnoticed. However, it was in all the papers when the Natick Boys' football team won their twenty third game in a row. It's only a difference of about one hundred and seventy five games, and in the world of mens' and womens' sport, these one hundred and seventy five games don't mean a damn thing.

Football Game

one, two, three, down ...

There's no business like show business.

What is the Thanksgiving day football game?

. . . It's something for everyone! For the teachers it's a time to get out there and show some school spirit. For the alumnae it's a time to come back and swap hugs, kisses, and stories with people they haven't seen since graduation (or the last football game). For students it's a time to cheer their school onto victory, by playing in the band, being on the cheerleading or pep squad, or by just screaming until their faces turn the school colors. And, for the parents, it's a time to be proud of their young adults for being special enough people to want to work, cheer, or play for Brookline High School.

So this is football?

Coaches . . .

Coaches ... If you ever took time out from a game or match to watch one of them, what would you see? ... An athletic looking person dressed in layers of assorted athletic-looking garb ... a mature adult jumping up and down, screaming, and waving his/her arms madly ... or, ... a cool character crouched on the sideline surveying the situation with a calculated eye. They are a unique group, our coaches. They pour their energy, concentration, intelligence and tolerance into us, they bail us out but still joke around with us, they teach us, they stand around in the rain alot making little marks in soggy, muddy notebooks with non-functional pens. They put up with alot especially on the bus (!!?!), but what it all boils down to is a group of people who share a great part of themselves, their ideas, their personalities, their knowledge with us in order that we might benefit and through our own quest for excellence become better people. What do they get? Satisfaction, we hope, but also the chance to share in our lives and our personalities at this stage, for no matter what is said about "this stage", it certainly is a lot of fun!!

BOYS' SWIMMING
It was an uphill battle for the boys' swim team. With the pool closed for the entire season, Brookline couldn't host a single meet, and the team was forced to practice every morning at Boston College. Despite this inconvenience the team retained its determination to win the Suburban League Championship. The swimmers ended their season undefeated, and placed fourth in the South Sectionals, two accomplishments never before achieved in the history of Brookline High.

Coming up for air.

Hey, Babareeba — Hey Babareeba — Brookline's #1
we're wicked and we're fast
we're smoke on the water watch us kick some ---!

CHAMPS!

Our name is Brookline
we were livin' in a hut
and along came our team told 'em shake it up —
shake it up
mean machine down
all right
you can rock, you can roll,
you can do it with soul!

Anthony holds 'em off.

Brookline above the rest.

New team; New coach; Hard work.

Hard work!

Sticky fingers.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

The team's record this year was not as good as it has been in the past, but in what could have been a Rodney Dangerfield year, we managed to gain respect with some positive accomplishments. There are many things we will always remember about this year such as:

Teddy's "yokes" against Somerville.
Roy's radar J's
Larry's Breaking
Edgar's fifty-foot shot
Kevin's formal attire for away games
Todd's lightning quickness
David's left against Newton
Ty's amazing debut on Varsity
Chris's way with women
Anthony's deft handle
John's rough play in practice
Kenny's nasty swats
Daryl's star performance at North Quincy
Korey's size 15 "dawgs"

All in all the year was meaningful. We were a team. We won together, and lost together, and developed a sense of closeness. I know that next year this team will be transformed and have a very successful season. Thanks everyone.
John Fortier

Put me in and I'll turn this game around.

The 1983-84 Girls' Basketball season was a success by any measure. Aside from the impressive winning record of the team, there were many individual accomplishments which deserve to be recognized.

Maeve overcame the obstacle of creating her renowned ponytail without the aid of a mirror.

Sara succeeded in exemplifying the "perfect" airball.

Michelle succeeded in ripping her pantyhose before every away game.

Nique won the best developed biceps contest before the Brockton game.

Stephanie's defense made as big an impression on her game as her dimples made on her physiognomy.

Warriors get psyched!

Sara, you all-star!

Determination brings them

C.C. finally obtained her high fashion fluorescent rubber foot-wear from Paris.

Cindy succeeded in holding everyone's attention long enough to say, "I dream of Jeannie with a bowl in her eye."

Robin converted her dinks to dunks.

Ruth, in an attempt to be more like Hanya, succeeded in blow-drying out her curls but failed in passing through the key.

Hanya, in an attempt to be more like Ruth, succeeded in perming in curls but failed to bruise her chin.

Coach Toney showed her warrior pride by abandoning the orange and black and supporting the red, white and blue.

THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES!

— H.B. & R.L. —

An all-star struts her stuff.

It's all in the ponytail!

Gymnastics

Beginning the season with only four veterans, the mere existence of a Boys' Gymnastics team for the '83-'84 season was doubtful. In spite of this initial setback a team was formed and proceeded to perform beyond expectation. The new talent consisted of underclassmen Lu, Juan, Yur, Jason, and Eduardo.

Lu Yoder, brother of veteran Chris Yoder, highlighted his season on the parallel bars with his achievement of an awesome press handstand. Juan, a strong competitor, did well on the p-bars and is looking forward to extending his participation into other events. Yur Khang led the team in the floor exercise and has great potential to develop into an impressive overall gymnast. Jason Wong, voice of the team, follows in the footsteps of his brother (class of 1981), a former team captain, as an extremely talented competitor. Ed, the captain-elect, enjoyed a good season on the high-bar and received a medal for his vaulting performance at the South League meet.

The veterans of the team, led by captain Matti Williams, all performed well, enabling the team to consistently score respectably. Highlights were Daniel Lee's silver medal (2nd place) in the rings at the South League meet, and his qualifying for the State meet, Joe Weirs medal winning performance on the vault, and Chris Yoder's pommel horse routine.

Faced with the loss of a team member early in the season, league re-organization, and stiff competition, the team overwhelmed Newton South (Supra) in its most impressive victory of the season. Special thanks go to coach Steve Gosdanian for his tremendous and successful efforts in bringing together a creditable team. Next year holds great potential for a winning team who through their hard work this year have prepared themselves for the future.

Girls' Gymnastics

We started off with a small team. Then, two of our all-around competitors were injured, and out for the season, leaving us with an even smaller team consisting of only seven members.

With the help of our fine coaches, Lisa Ferraro, and Norman Devio, our talented team, having a distinct disadvantage, concluded with a successful season. We might have obtained the suburban league title if only;

Laura and Kelly could have handled Medford's mats.

Jenny and Laurie were fat enough to bounce off our board.

Margie loved her routine as much as everyone elses on the team.

The judge at Bridgewater could have timed Jane's routine

We had our own board.

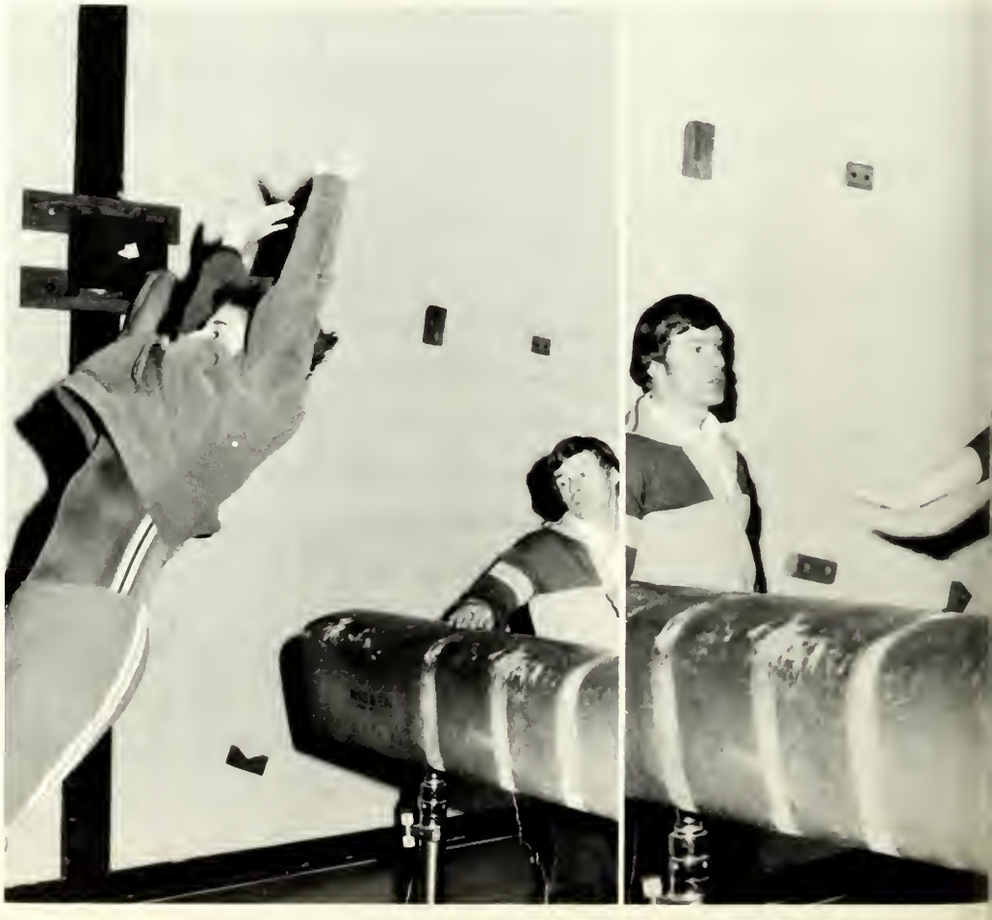
Mr. Devio's legs were stronger.

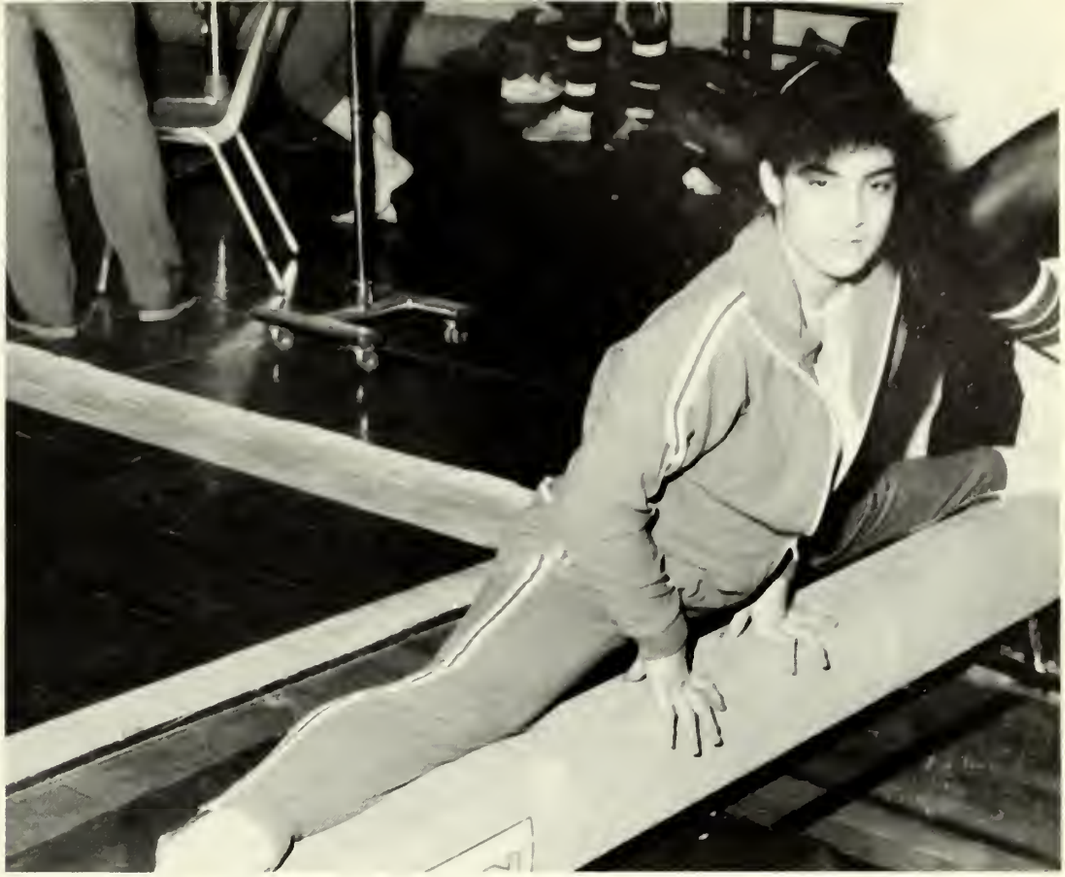
Our bus driver could have been sane.

We showed up at meets on time.

As we had no senior members next year we look forward to an even stronger team. So, look out, Brockton!

Girls' gymnastics





Unparalleled!

Ode to Adidas

To set down the season in a form that is terse,
I've opted to use the medium of verse:
The first winning season the team did complete,
For the first time Brockton and Weymouth
we beat.
Mike "Keg-Legs" Doherty is a captain we all follow,
That name's well deserved, for one leg
must be hollow.
Captain Dave was in fashion of tights
shining and red,
But he had to concede the "Best Legs" title
to Ted.
Over the hurdles flew Nichols and Gillis
with ease,
You would never guess they had bruises on their knees.
The crowd chanted "Pee-Wee!" as Jon
mounted the track,
He won every 600 by surging out of the pack.
Galone and Gonz provided an International spice,
Though these warm weather boys did not like our ice.
Juniors Whang, Chertok, Skillman, and
Counts showed greatness;
While young Kenny Steinman took flack for his lateness.
Sprinters Ng and Gillis were always on the Lam,
And the relays were off with one shout of
"ram!"
With flailing arms Pete Sheldon crossed the line,
Then we'd all go to Presto to dine.
After a successful six years Coach Burns left with good reasons,
While James Carson and Aaron Becker
completed their last seasons.
But, coaches Burke, Glennon, and Parsons
are going to stay;
Hoping a championship might come their way.

GIRLS' WINTER TRACK

The Girls' Winter Track team did not have the best season, but it was a fun one. The first two meets went very well. The team ran hard and showed lots of enthusiasm. But as the weeks went by, illness and depression set in causing many losses of good runners. Two thirds of the team showed up, but those who were left were still optimistic. By the end of the season the hours had turned to minutes, and the minutes to seconds, and everyone was almost in top shape. The relay teams did very well at the dual meets. The 4x400 took Second and Fourth place at the Coaches Relays and the States. Track is one of the most rewarding sports on the list. Although the team may not have done terribly well, the individuals did. There is nothing like winning a race. It is a feeling that everyone should experience at least once in a lifetime.

Wrestling

The 1983-84 wrestling season has been a turning point for Brookline. After two years with records of 1-11, 3-9 we ended this year with a 6-8 record. We had several convincing wins, 51-6 over Medford, 47-18 over Minutemen Regional and a 44-18 thumping of Cambridge. The team accomplished this with a very young group (only two seniors) which holds well for next year, and the year after. We had a lot of kids with spirit and desire, and they all worked as hard as they could. During the year several kids distingushed themselves, Tseung Lee had on almost perfect record, mared by only one loss and a tie. Junior Bob Hayes a seasoned veteran had another outstanding season. Nervale Ramsey had a 11-3 regular season record and the rest of the team as a whole, did beyond their expected ability.

Unfortunately none of our wrestlers placed in the top four at the sectionals. The captains, Mark Ford and Michael Drain, wish to express their gratitude to Mr. Puleo. Without Mr. Puleo the wrestling team would still be getting thumped by most of the teams they play. Personally, I wish to thank Mr. Puleo for all he has done and I know that some day soon Mr. Puleo will lead Brookline wrestling to a Suburban League championship. We also wish to thank Mr. Roark for all this help. And finally Mark and Michael wish the future wrestling teams of Brookline, the best of luck!

Hockey:

HOCKEY '83-'84

Although this season's record was not up to par from previous seasons, the BHS Varsity Hockey team played competitively all year. With only four full time players returning from last year's team, the underclassmen had to play a significant part in the outcome of the season.

The early part of the season showed signs of inconsistency and lack of experience, but by the end of the season the team was going toe to toe with the best in the league.

Injuries plagued the team throughout the year as John Kelleher and Peter Meade missed several games. Key defenseman Bobby Allen was lost for the season with a broken ankle, but Eric Doran's leadership on the blue line helped bring the first year defensemen along nicely. Up front Co-Captains David O'Brien and Scott Carey, along with hardworking linemate A.J. Slavin produced a great deal of offense, always posing a threat to their opponents. Other key players up front included senior Ken Shea and sophomores Brian Slavin, Dennis Radley, and Richie Sheridan. In net, sophomore Joey Marco played the majority of the time with juniors Tim Hennessey and Tim Smith ready to step in anytime.

A Competitive Season

TIME — 12:00 P.M.

PLACE — Cafeteria in Brookline High School

"Hey kid! Yeah you. Get out of that chair! WHY? You dare ask why?! Because you are a low life freshman, and I am a mighty junior!" Needless to say the freshman scurries off in search of a new seat, while the junior is now boasting about his conquest to his friends.

The dominance over freshman and sophomores is one of the more pleasant aspects of being a junior. You can recall memories of how you were treated like dirt in your first two years, now it's your turn to dish it out. No longer do you have to look up to everyone in the halls; now you tower over half of the school population. There are still the seniors to contend with, but once you get to know them, they aren't that bad.

Associating with seniors, you can't help but hear talk about college. As a junior, this is the first time you start thinking seriously about where you want to spend the next four years of your life after high school; in college, working, or just having fun. A junior's mind is filled with different hopes and dreads. This is the time where plans for the future start to form. There is one major obstacle in the way; the dreaded SAT's.

On a Saturday in May during every year, juniors drag themselves from their warm beds at 8:00 in the morning to take these aptitude tests. After a six week wait, the results come to the junior's home, where a variety of reactions are seen. For some, hopes of Harvard and Stanford are rekindled. For other, the results spell d-i-s-a-s-t-e-r. For the majority however, the results are sat-isfactory. Otherwise the junior year is pretty much the same as a the previous two years have been.

"Hey kid? Yeah, you! Get out of that chair! Why? You dare ask why?! Because you are a lowlife junior and I am a mighty senior!"

FACULTY

TEACHERS are:
People who care,
People who share,
People who are there
When you need them.
Willing to help, to comfort
Or to reprimand as the case may be.
Willing to challenge, to lead
Or to let us lead as we grow.
Our paths cross for four short years,
When we leave we look back not at
The buildings and grounds but to
You who have made a difference.
As you remember us, so shall we Remember you.

Being a student at B.H.S. is a "learning experience." For example in your freshman and sophomore years, you learn how to lock and unlock your locker. By junior year, you are able to identify your school lunch. And by graduation, whether you have realized it or not, you have come to know the Teacher's Dress Code.

This unwritten law cannot be taught, but is extremely evident if you stroll into any department office and observe the teachers that congregate there. First you might visit a guidance office. There you will find counselors' clothing a blur of colors. They are off to another meeting, and will have to cancel your appointment again. You begin to wonder what your counselor really looks like.

Next, you might drop into the Social Studies Department, finding the apparel of the "professor-like" teachers rather bland. Most of the outfits look like they came out of an historical magazine!! Walking by the Science office you see several teachers in their blue lab coats. Suspiciously you wonder what they really wear under those coats. Do they symbolize the membership to some secret clan?

. . . still baffled, you quietly peek into the Math Office. You discover that nothing clashes; all buttons are buttoned, shoelaces are tied, and the outfits are simple. Everyone looks as balanced as an algebraic equation. This is refreshing, but not as exciting as the varied attire of the many English teachers. Tall or short, most dress expressing their own individuality. Some of these wardrobes are limited, though, and often an outfit is repeated more than once a week.

SOCIAL STUDIES

You must not forget to make a quick stop in the Foreign Language Department, but avoiding your teacher for fear of having to carry on a conversation of more than five words in your chosen "second" language. Students could describe the outfits in French, Spanish, or German as "anything goes". The clothing and choice of colors are peculiar and look a bit foreign!! After you escape safely, you will realize one important fact; at a closer look you can see that each teacher dresses differently compared to the next one. Their outfits reveal their own distinct personality and their own sense of style!!

To the Sophomores of Brookline High School:
The editors of the Murivian are sorry to say that we tried and tried, but just couldn't find anything to say about sophomore year in high school. Sophomores aren't upperclassmen, so they don't get any major respect. Sophomores, aren't freshmen, so nothing is new. You don't buy elevator passes; You have found the fourth floor (and may have even ventured into SWS) by now; You have tried something other than pretzels for lunch; You don't have to worry about PSAT, SAT, Achievements, college applications, interviews, or a senior paper; You don't even have a car, so you can impress fellow students. The only new, good, or different thing about sophomores is, YOU ARE NO LONGER FRESHMEN!!!
Congrats —

TIME AFTER

For all the students who were sick of General Hospital and needed a place to hide from their guidance counselor(s) after school, clubs were the answer. Brookline High's Clubs have progressed from just a few Clubs to almost any Club imaginable. From the History Club to the Ski Club, there's the Latin Club and a Key Club. Some think Ping Pong's better, when others would rather tap into a Computer. If there isn't a Club that matches your interest, it's possible to form your own, to do something you like best!

This year's Murivian editorial staff was very new and always changing (for better or worse). At the beginning of this year-long project, nobody knew anybody else, except for a few previously formed or diminished relationships. As time progressed, days, weeks, months, deadlines — not only did everybody get to know everyone else, but we also learned that . . .
NIQUE's attention is acquired by two words: Tom Cruise
AARON only knows two letters of the alphabet: Op
STEF wears ducky boots because his vans are worn out KAREN is the invisible woman except for
MEHRDAD . . . "It was a camera?"
KECIA looooooves PURPLE
EMMELINE will always give a piece of her mind
JOSH is always up to something, usually no good
CATHY is too busy worrying about her love life
JODY will laugh at the most serious matters
ELLYN still isn't sure what is going on KATHY always agrees no matter what
KIM isn't one to speak to in the morning
JON is an extensive conversationalist: "HEY what's up?!"
JANE is always in other offices
NANCY is the mysterious, good cleaning lady that always is singing off key
CAROLYN has yet to wear some color other than black
JESS always has a great idea
SCHNIP never raises her voice above a whisper
And don't forget: the Christmas tree, pizza, gummy bears, Norm, Karen's calendar, cartoon wars, FP, the new wave yearbook, Eleanor Johnson, Dave, The Cabbage Patch Doll (thanks Jon), The Murivian Adoption Agency, the paint smell, the fan, the window?, Saggy boys, Murivvy girls, Wea be yo pisure an yo kwote?

EDITORS

"Refractions," the school literary magazine and the pride of A-wing, is proud to announce that all proceeds from Everybody's Concert will be donated to the "Sagamore" and the "Murivian" so that they can hire a construction company to "build" windows into their walls . . . and so they can buy their own popcorn machines. Seriously though, "Refractions" is an outlet in the high school that encourages students to submit their own poetry, prose, artwork or photography. It provides a chance for other students to see what their peers are doing, especially at the time of Everybody's Concert, when students can show their talents in music, dance and drama. (Does anyone else in A-wing do anything like this? NO . . .).

TOWN MEETING 1983-84

Town Meeting is the fully representational legislative governance body of Brookline High School. It has jurisdiction over all policies, rules, and regulations found in the student handbook. Each year dedicated students, faculty members and staff work to improve the school and represent the opinions of their varied constituencies. When school opened in the fall of '83 Town Meeting squared off against the conservative factions of the administration who in the "July Revolution" had deigned to pull in the reins of Open Campus with the "3 acts" whereby freshmen have no Open Campus, Sophomores are restricted to the campus, and Juniors and Seniors are left with "the sign out system". What followed was intense debate culminating in a censorial vote of no confidence in the administration. Dr. McCarthy took a lot of flak considering he was only trying to improve the educational atmosphere of the school. The remainder of the fall and winter dissolved into numerous debates and proposals and constant re-hashing of the Open Campus issue. Later, the body delved into a discussion of its own jurisdiction in an attempt to create a constitution. It was not always fun. There were days when the topics were introspective, the sophomores verbose, and the seniors asleep, but there was always the underlying faith that we were all there because we cared about Brookline High School and wanted to do as much for this magnificent institution as it had done (and is doing) for us. And we even managed to delay mid-year exams for a day!!

Spanish Club: Enables students of the Spanish language to learn about the culture of Spanish-speaking peoples.

Latin Club: Composed of students interested in Greek and Roman culture, history, mythology, and related topics. Meets twice monthly. In 1981, the club built a first-place middle distance catapult, held a Roman banquet, participated in State Convention.

Black Awareness Club: Organizes activities for Black History Week and other activities throughout the year to highlight the Black experience at Brookline High School.

Le French Club desperately tried to organize brunches, cinema, and any type of social event to do with the Francais culture. We did succeed in having a delightful après midi of crepès and chantilly, and also a successful bake sale — the fric was supposedly spint on the deux fine French dines, vin included. Le club does try jt's hardest to be organized, but with so many busy, populaire people in it, it is très difficult to gather everyone at one time, in one place. So hopefully next year (though 1985 is an uniucky numero) a serieuse person will take charge and get the spectacle on the road!

Project Base: Brookline Alcohol Safety Education, located in Room 322, trains peer educators to promote responsible drinking decisions or comfortable non-use.

HISTORY CLUB A student who does not understand history is doomed to repeat it. To understand the past is to prepare for the future.

Law Club

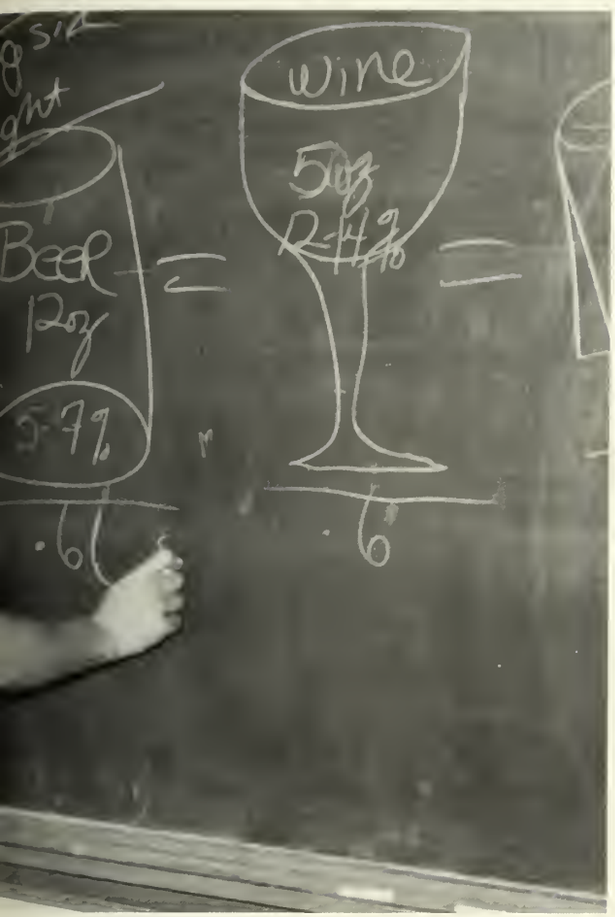
Fairness Committee The Fairness Committee is the judicial branch of our school government. It shall be made up of 21 individuals, consisting of 14 students and 7 staff members. The members shall be chosen by a Selection Committee, made up of the Headmaster, the Town Manager, two students, and two faculty members. All members of the school are encouraged to apply to serve on the Fairness Committee.

Faculty Justices: Jennifer Huntington, Patrice Hurley, Nancy Colburn, Arnie Marcus, Frances Pogovin, George Viglirolo, Elaine Young, Robert McCarthy

Student Justices: Edward Flood, Elyn Friedman, Peter Hudson, Chris Hummel, David Kramer, Tamara Kraus, Diane Krause, Jane Levine, Lannae Long, Elizabeth Pelcygar, Deepa Prusty, Mihal Ronen, Gil Rosenthal, Rebecca Weisel.

Alternates: Michael Arnett, Nancy Katz, Sarah McKibben, Liz Saffran, Ann-Lucien Senna.

B.A.



Key Club: is a service organization of B.H.S. The Kiwanis affiliated group has one of the largest memberships in the school and uses this great resource to raise money for scholarships and assist elderly, hospital, and youth organizations through volunteer work.

Big Brother/Big Sister. High School students are assigned, through referral, to elementary school students who need support and friendship. One hour per week.

S.E.

International Club: is a social club for foreign students at B.H.S. The club provides a place for students to get to know each other, and talk about school, work and career concerns. Members plan parties, skating and bowling trips, bake sales and an annual overnight trip.

"Vanessa and Iris; a journal for young feminists" is an organization of creative and political activity for young women. The staff puts out a journal roughly every month and attends lectures, films and demonstrations. Members: Melissa Evalds, Arianne Garden-Vazquez, Rebecca Arnoldi, Hannah Doress, Sarah Ogier, Amelia Berns, Cecilia Karlstrom, Mara Kampe and Lierre Kleth.

Volunteers for Community Service: T.A.S.K. (Teenagers Serving Kids) a group of high school students who organize activities for younger children in a local housing project.
Members are: Kristin Hoffmeister, Julia Galloway, Steven Grindl, Morgan Jones, Wendy Beaton, Lauren Feldman, Cyndy Lyons, Karin Kelley, Helen Han, Wen Min Hou.

S.T.O.P. The Student Teacher Organization to Prevent Nuclear War is a student run group whose aim is to educate the school community on nuclear issues. We sponsor speakers and student action committees.
Founder and President: Hannah Doress
Faculty Advisor: Thomas Ladenburg

Writers and Company is giving the writers of Brookline High School a feeling of unity. We plan to publish a magazine approximately every month, have weekly support meetings, and have guest speakers for all who are interested. We discuss our work, offer encouragement as well as constructive criticism. We care about you as writers and readers. Anyone is more than welcome to join or submit material.

Key Club visits an old age home to spread warmth and good cheer.

China Night Club

Computer Club plans and executes programs to stump the stars.

Bike Club

Ski Club: Allows all skiers, whether beginners or experts, the opportunity to ski with friends inexpensively. Boasting a membership of over 100 students, the club offers several day and weekend trips to New England ski areas, and most spectacularly a week-long trip to Sugarloaf during February vacation. It also allows students to know one another outside of the school, in a totally different environment, and out of the club come some of the closest friendships.

Math Team "We wouldn't mind Trigonometry if it wasn't for the sines and cosines." Mathletes include: Adam Posen, Luis Navas (co-captains), Eilav Haskal, Tony Lin, Paul Liu, Andrei Halperin, Tanvir Hussein, Ken Chin, Ramin Roayal, Joel Abrams, Einstein Yee, Richard Tom.

National Honor Society: Selects members on the basis of their outstanding academic achievement, good citizenship and service to the school community. The society provides a tutoring service for the students of the school and participates in fund-raising activities to provide a scholarship.

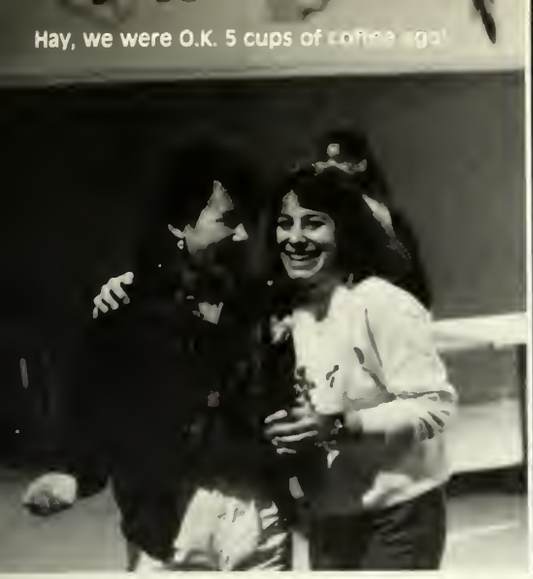
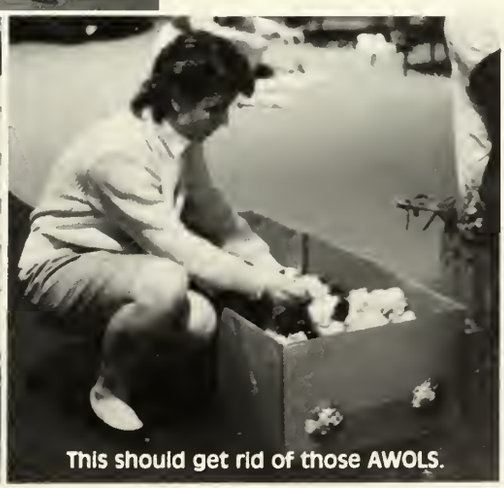
T.O.S.C.O.B. The Orogenic Scaling Club of Brookline is the only one of its type at the High School. This club provides the opportunity to see New England through mountain climbing in the fall, snowshoe and ski trips in the winter and bicycle and hiking trips in the spring.

Ping Pong Club Speed, accuracy, skill and the desire to compete are all part of the Ping Pong Club. Each player tries to improve with the hope of eventually winning the tournament.



Will you be my Valentine?

I'll send you one if you send me one!
Is it O.K. to send one to an underclassman. (cradle robber)
I wonder if he'll send me one?
She loves me. She loves me not. She loves me . . .



Freshmen you can find them
A) Standing in the junk food line
B) Traveling in herds
C) Still looking for the fourth floor
D) In study hall
E) Combing their hair before and after class
E) Attending the ping pong dance

I'll never forget my sophomore year in high school! It was now my turn to rank on freshmen, but most important. I knew what I was doing and where I was going. The worst feeling was being lost my first day. I was to embarrassed to ask anyone how to get to the fourth floor, so I just tried out a couple of promising stairwells. Anyhow, on my first attempt, I began my ascent to the fourth floor. On my way up, I passed a couple of kids who resembled adults. I thought to myself "They must be seniors!" I realized that I had made a big mistake when I found myself on the roof. Only then did I figure out that I took the wrong stairs. How was I going to pass these kids on my way down without having freshmen written all over my face? I solved this by waiting for them to leave. I missed my C block class, but it was worth avoiding the embarrassment. Great, it was D block and time for first lunch. That was a nightmare in itself! Never have I seen so many kids in one place. Well, I managed to find my way over to the pretzels where I dripped mustard all over my new white corduroys. I figured everyone would think my pants were new wave. I glanced down at my schedule. "Great", I thought, "I have ten minutes to find my D block class." Gee, that's funny, everyone is already sitting down. Oh, I guess the class before mine isn't over yet." Fifteen minutes passed and the class was still in session. "Alright, be a man and go investigate the situation." I introduced myself to the teacher. She was understanding and kind (so I thought). She told me that I took the wrong lunch. I was relieved that I wasn't in trouble. My teacher, being thoughtful, alerted the class to my mistake and tried to explain the lunch schedule. That was the end of me! Everyone laughed. It took me a few months to live that one down! So guess what I'm doing now . . . waiting for those pitiful froshies to climb the stairs in search of the elusive fourth floor. Oh, don't get me wrong . . . I'm not mean. I admit that I occasionally tell freshmen to take the green line to Park Street in order to get to the M.T. building, but I'm usually quite helpful .

The events at B.H.S. are part of the reason that our school is unique and special. A typical events illustration shows;

a. Many excited members of the cast.
b. Seven or eight people in the audience (most of whom are parents of the actors).
c. People in the cafe begging students to buy $2.50 tickets.
d. Hyper directors back stage, wishing they could get away with hitting just one student.
e. Everyone throwing together an act. ½ hour before Everybody's Concert try outs.
f. Marches and demonstrations.
g. Bake Sales
h. Dances, dances and more dances.
i. Speakers and guests.
j. AND of course, those things which are unique each year so we can't predict what will occur.

EVENTS

"Echoes" . . . October 12, 1983

When the P.T.O. asked the "Drama of Social Issues Workshop" to explore the issue of parent-teenager relationships from the teenager's point of view, we willingly obliged. In the end, many of the parents were surprised at the number of scenes that seemed commonplace in homes other than their own. All in all, the P.T.O. got more than they bargained for.

P.T.O. Back to School Night . . . October 25, 1983

David Susskind . . . October 28, 1983

On October 28th, David Susskind returned to Brookline High School to share memories of his years here and offer some advice and suggestions. He is an electrifying personality and all those who shared the experience of speaking with him came away the richer for it.

Blood Drive . . . November 2, 1983

Halloween Dance . . . October 28, 1983

"Up In Arms" . . . November 15, 1983

As part of the Nuclear Issues Week of Dialogue, the "Drama of Social Issues Workshop" produced "Up In Arms", a sometimes comic, sometimes dramatic series of scenes that looked at the realities of living in a nuclear world. This piece was a moving epilogue to the much discussed "The Day After", that was aired prior to our first performance.

The Great American Smokeout . . . November 17, 1983

Fall Awards Assembly . . . December 8, 1983

League All-Stars; Robin, Eric, Mickey

. Michael, Deanne, Tehani.

S.T.O.P. Marches for World Peace

The Student Teacher Organization to Prevent Nuclear War (S.T.O.P. Nuclear War) has sponsored many speakers, student action committes and has participated in several demonstrations this fall.

Bake Sales Galore

Bake sales remain one of the most popular ways for clubs and organizations to raise money. Everyone profits from these delicious experiences.

French Cooking Demonstration . . . November 17, 1983

On November 17, 1983 Mr. Heinz Bunger of the Copley Plaza Hotel demonstrated the art of flambé cooking to our Home Economics classes. Mr. Bunger, who was trained in Europe and who for many years has been the maitre d' in the Cafe Plaza, was the first in a series of experts scheduled to present cooking techniques to our students.

I suppose this is good-bye to my second home, though it's memories will never part me. I will always treasure these two years at Brookline High. I owe this all to the friends, teachers, and my guidance counselor; Ms. Toni Hamilton.

Thank you: Henric, Ekbal, Carl, Brian, Tamara, Tami, Jenny H, Cyrus, John F, Jon M, Jody L, Alison S, Delara, Lannae, Nique B, Zarka & Tiffany, Manoj, Anastasia, Rhonda, Josh S, Paul, Rana (Namjil), Scott P, Harrold Z, John A, Robert O, Kecia, Nancy B, Jane L (SS), Sylvia D, Cori, Liz S, Steve H, Jon Z, Antonio, Elizabeth B, Carlos, Einstein, Walter, Fariza, Nina, Jennie, Kim P, Ramin, Bob R, Julie M, Samantha G, Hilary, Iris, Yuval, Denise, Donia, Peter, David C, David H, Jennie L, Jennie R, Michelle B, Liz S, Mihal, Andrew M, Barbara H, Khatereh, Mellissa R, Becky R, Sarah W, Rachel, Kirsten ...

I thank my teachers for all they have taught me; Mr. Cohen, Ms. Schnipper, Mr. Ladenburg, Ms Kean, Dr Berko, Mr Lane, Ms Burger, Mr Alpert, Ms Addelson, Ms Frangos, Ms Hammond, Ms Metzger, Ms Reynolds, Dr Gleekman, Mr Stoskopf, Ms Wiggin, Mr. Ulich, Ms Planchon, Ms Cha, Ms Lane, Ms Rotenberg, Mr. Johnson, Ms McCormick, Ms Thiffault, Mr. Hafferty, and Mr Shure.

I thank Mehran, Mitra, Mom & Dad for everything.

I have a long path ahead of me, but so far it had gone well due to your help. I will miss you all. I may see a few of you in the future, however if I don't, I wish you all the best of luck, health and success!

Goodbye for Now,

The 1984 Murivian staff, in its attempt to produce the best yearbook ever (even better than last year's), hopes that the moments captured in the 230 pages of this masterpiece exhibit the life and memorable times at Brookline High in 1984.

Our foremost objective was to make a book for everyone by including as many people as possible representing sixty different countries around the world.

BEST OF LUCK TO THE AMAZING CLASS OF 1984!
